Ideas in Selecting a Writing or Poetry Subject:

- Remember an important time or event in your life
- Look at the world around you
- Describe something you like or dislike
- Think of a favorite person
- Begin a cluster with the center word as your general idea that is related to your subject. Then cluster related words around that center word.
- Freely list ideas as they come to mind.
- Complete an open ended sentence in as many ways as you can.
- Free write for 5-10 minutes. Then stop and underline ideas that could serve as specific subjects for your writing.
- For poetry that rhymes, look at key words you’ve written and list words that rhyme with them.

Writing Poetry:

- Poetry speaks to the senses, so create pictures with words. Take note of how the excerpt in the box paints a vivid picture with words.
- Poetry speaks to the heart, so make sure it asks you to feel something!!
- Poetry looks different from prose and poems are written in lines and stanzas (groups of lines).
- Poetry sounds different, so pay special attention to the sound of your work. Some great poetry techniques include:
  - Alliteration: repeating of beginning consonant sounds
  - End Rhyme: the rhyming of words at the ends of lines of poetry
  - Onomatopoeia: the use of a word whose sound makes you think of its meaning
  - Quatrain: a four-line stanza
  - Repetition: the repeating of a word or phrase to add rhythm or to focus on an idea

After the Sea-Ship
by Walt Whitman

After the Sea-Ship—after the whistling winds;

After the white-gray sails, taut to their spars and ropes,

Below, a myriad, myriad waves, hastening, lifting up their necks,

Tending in ceaseless flow toward the track of the ship:

Waves of the ocean, bubbling and gurgling, blithely prying,

Waves, undulating waves—liquid, uneven, emulous waves,

Toward that whirling current, laughing and buoyant, with curves,

Where the great Vessel, sailing and tacking, displaced the surface. . .

| Narrative                                  | • Personal Narrative - experiences that have been encountered, read, or heard about. Lots of description, action, and dialogue will help make the piece interesting and engage the reader to feel what the author felt.
• Imaginative Narrative - a made up story. Instead of being about real things, this story is about things you imagine. Creativity is the most important thing in making an imaginative story. You don't need to be afraid to go above and beyond reality. For example, instead of including events that can happen to you every day, create unusual events that could never happen in real life. |
| Writing that is used to describe, explain, or inform (conveys information from writer to reader.) | | |
| Expository                                 | • Steps:
1. Select topic – be sure that it is not too broad.
• The thesis statement and topic sentences have subjects which are about the topic and clearly state a purpose.
• Stay away from first and second person pronouns.
• Each paragraph should have a topic sentence, which states the purpose, and two or three sentences that provide evidence.
• Vary sentence structure, write in active voice, use action verbs |
| Writing that attempts to convince the reader to accept a particular point of view or to take a specific action. | | |
| Persuasive                                 | • Use evidence to support your viewpoint, consider opposing views and present a strong conclusion:
1. Identify the main idea or point of view and persuade the audience to accept this idea or point of view.
2. Identify the audience and try to understand the audience.
3. Identify the most significant opposing view.
• Think through an argument by stating an opinion.
• Add support through evidence of prediction, statistics, observation, expert testimony, and/or comparison
• Make concessions by identifying other valid opinions about the subject. This makes the overall argument more convincing. Some expressions to use include: even though, I agree that, I cannot argue with, admittedly. |
