1) Come, O ye feast-lovers, let us all keep a Byzantine Chant Tone 1 Special Melody: Thou art the joy festivities, honoring the blessed memory of the glorious teachers, who by the Divine Spirit cast down the pride of refractory heresies; and with their teachings, which thunder with God's own voice, they made strong and sure the Church of Christ.

2) Those mystic stars who shone bright with the rays of right belief poured forth exceeding splendor in their Orthodox writings; one shut up the God-hated jabbering mouth of the impious Arius;

and by the other, Nestorius, who was mad,

was cast down with vain Sabellius.

3) With hymns of praise, let us laud those two zealots of the Lord, the sacred pair of teachers, our God-given instructors: steadfast Athanasius the Great, and with him, godly Cyril, the flame of fire;

for now united in Heaven, they ceaselessly intercede with God in our behalf.
4) By the entreaties of Thy divine hierarchs,

O Christ God, from Heaven do Thou visit Thine elect flock, O Master, which graze amidst malicious and menacing wolves, whose great pride do Thou overthrow.

For, lo, the scandals of heresies even now have in no wise come unto an end.
