

January 26th

Venerable Xenophon, his wife, Mary, and their two sons, Arkadios and John, of Constantinople

Stichera at "O Lord, I have cried"

Byzantine Tone 2
Special Melody: When he took thee

Adapted by Dn. John El Massih

1) Shin - ing with high dig - ni - ty of soul, thou didst make thy -
2) Per - ish - a - ble glo - ry did ye scorn, and ye were vouch -
3) Hav - ing slain the pas - sions of the flesh, ye ar - rayed your -

- self more il - lus - tri - ous through thine alms - deeds and faith;
-safed thē un - per - ish - ing grace and glo - ry of God
- selves in the gar - ment of true dis - pas - sion, O Saints, for with joy didst thou dis - perse thy rich - es for ye tram - pled un - der foot ev - 'ry de - which by spot - less pu - ri - ty of life ye to the poor. Hence, O Fa - ther, thy right - eous - ness

- light of life, long - ing ar - dent - ly af - ter Christ, wove with skill; and for liv - ing thē An - gels' life a - bid - eth for ev - er, shin - ing on thy soul that fair and the tru - ly de - light - ful, Who hath saved you from the storm and while yet in the bod - y, ye have been vouch - safed an - gel - ic nev - er - set - ting light, bil - lows of the world

glo - ry in the heights,

January 26th - Xenophon & his family - Stichera at "O Lord, I have cried" - 2 where thou see - st thy right - eous chil - dren and hath brought you forth to cast an - chor where ye all re - joice and take pleas - ure and their bless - ed moth - er now dwell - ing in that peace - ful life filled with bright - ness, in div - ine and heav - en - ly splen - dor,

in the heav - 'nly cit - y, O wise Xen - o - phon.
O God - bear - ers who are bless - ed in all things.
O ye great of spir - it, who strove val - iant - ly.